“As the Vice President Finance and Administration at SFU, my team and I participated in a one hour workshop on social purpose finance and administration. I found the conversation to be valuable on many fronts – thought provoking, idea generating and even re-assuring in that we were already starting down a path of social innovation without realizing that was what we were doing.

“As a senior leader I have always viewed myself as a progressive thinker. Traditionally the role of VP Finance and Administration was “Finance” and now more currently our institutions expect us also to be service oriented in the support the academic mission. I believe the next phase of expectations are rapidly approaching senior administrators – helping enable the University to live and fulfill its social mandate. It’s becoming an ever growing expectation of our staff, students, faculty and communities and the challenge is being put to us. In this regard I think you will find the workshop to be a timely and thought provoking investment of your time.”

- Martin Pochurko, Vice-President Finance and Administration, Simon Fraser University

▶ SFU HOLDS ORIENTATION WORKSHOP WITH KEY STAFF TO ALIGN THE DEPARTMENT

In 2018, the VP Finance and Administration at SFU included a one-hour introduction session on social purpose administration and finance within his regular meeting of direct reports. The purpose of the session was to increase awareness of the Social Purpose Administration and Finance Framework among administrative leaders, to share current practices at SFU, and to consider new ways to advance social impact in admin, finance and operations using the Framework.

Participants included senior leaders in finance, human resources, safety, sustainability, facilities, strategy, procurement, information and commercial services and external relations. The session concluded that there are many strong practices in place, driven by the culture and individual passions, although a strategic intent is not yet defined. Leaders were beginning to collaborate externally with peers and there were untapped opportunities to collaborate with external stakeholders on shared projects, in which costs could also be shared. Engaging more with expert academic researchers and the student body are future opportunities. There are challenges with time, resources and entrenched systems, however this is not insurmountable as progress is happening.

The overall ambition is for functional leads who experience the workshop to become interested and engaged in activating increased social impact within their operational portfolios, for greater benefits to students, the institution and society.

▶ OUTLINE OF THE WORKSHOP

The workshop will provide an overview of the CAUBO-RECODE initiative to engage admin and finance functions on social purpose / innovation and engage the different functions in exploring how this concept applies to their role, including past, present and future opportunities.
